

Pirapon June Ohata received her Bachelor of Science in Microbiology and Immunology (minor in Chemistry), and Bachelor of Arts in English Literature (minor in Psychology) in 1997 from the University of Miami (UM), Miami, Florida, USA. After she graduated from UM, she worked for the Department of Psychology for two years as a research assistant. In 1999, she worked at the Department of Microbiology and Immunology until her working visa expired. After returning to Thailand, she worked for ASEAN Institute for Health Development, Mahidol University, as a consultant/program officer for two years. She currently works for HIV-NAT as a research assistant since 2007. She has worked part-time as a medical writer for Research Affairs since 2008. She has edited more than 400 papers.